

PROJECT UPDATE

Powering Sydney's Future

A new transmission cable will be installed from Potts Hill to Alexandria. The Powering Sydney's Future project will ensure a safe, reliable and affordable electricity supply for Sydney's CBD and surrounding areas.

Sydney's population and economy are growing, so we need to secure the electricity supply for households and businesses. TransGrid is planning a new underground cable to help secure the electricity supply to Sydney's Central Business District (CBD) and surrounding areas into the future.

What is the project and why is it needed?

Powering Sydney's Future will deliver a new underground electricity cable, and upgrades to three substations. This will ensure Sydney's CBD and surrounding suburbs have a reliable energy supply into the future.

To avoid future disruption we are proposing to install additional infrastructure to allow for a second cable at a later stage.

Powering Sydney's Future at a glance:

- 20 kilometres of new 330kV underground cable
- The new cable will connect substations at Potts Hill and Alexandria
- Upgrading substations at Potts Hill, Alexandria and Picnic Point.

Our Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) is now on public exhibition for you to learn more about the project. You can also speak to the project team and share your views.

What does the EIS mean for you?

TransGrid is committed to engaging with the community during the planning and construction of Powering Sydney's Future. We used your feedback in the preparation of the EIS, and it is now on public display.

The studies that support the EIS are prepared by independent experts and include assessments of potential impacts on the local environment, including biodiversity, noise and vibration, air quality, and traffic and transport in your community.
