- A map of the study area in New South Wales, Australia. The map shows the Murrumbidgee River flowing from the top left towards the bottom right. Wagga Wagga is marked with a grey dot and labeled at the top left. Holbrook is marked with a grey dot and labeled at the bottom left. A pink line represents the study route, starting near Wagga Wagga and extending south-east towards Holbrook. A red dot on this route indicates the study site, with an elevation of 1049 m noted nearby. The terrain is depicted with green and brown shading, indicating different land cover types.

The image is an aerial photograph of a river section, likely the Darling River, showing a proposed engineering project. A central reach of the river is highlighted with a yellow cross-hatch pattern, bounded by dashed purple lines. Several blue-shaded areas, representing structures or islands, are located along this reach. Each blue area is associated with a label: '5C3/5C1-160' (top), '5C3/5C1-159' (second from top), '5C3/5C1-158' (middle), '5C3/5C1-157' (second from bottom), and '5C3/5C1-156' (bottom). Each label has a red square icon with a blue circle inside, connected to the blue area by a thin blue line. A road labeled 'WONDALGA ROAD' runs horizontally across the middle of the image, crossing the river. The surrounding landscape is green and hilly, with various smaller waterways and roads visible.

This aerial map displays a water distribution network overlaid on a landscape of fields and forests. The network consists of a main pipeline, highlighted with a yellow cross-hatch pattern, and several branching lines. Nodes are marked with blue circles containing a red square with a white checkmark. Each node is labeled with a red ID (e.g., 5C3/5C1-101) and a blue ID (e.g., 5C3/5C1-100). The main pipeline runs from the top left towards the bottom right. A road labeled 'BATLOW ROAD' is visible on the left side, crossing the pipeline. The network terminates in a small reservoir or pond at the bottom right. The background is an aerial photograph showing green fields, brown patches, and dark green forested areas.
